

CISV 2019

Fee and Cost Estimate for Participants

Fees and other program costs are kept as low as possible, while considering the costs of maintaining this non-profit, volunteer based organization. National and local program administration, communication, insurance, training and meeting costs all go into the calculation of total fees associated with each program, as well as estimated travel costs, spending money and incidental fees. Some of the amounts are estimates, based on past experience and current airfare/travel prices. The totals indicated give a fairly accurate picture of the costs to participate in a 2019 program.

Participation fees are NON-REFUNDABLE once a delegate has been selected and the delegate's family has committed to participate. If illness, accident, weather, acts of terror or other unforeseen circumstances result in a need to cancel participation, CISV will be UNABLE to refund fees paid. Therefore, CISV suggests that travelers obtain travel insurance to avoid loss of deposits and other fees paid. Delegates are expected to travel with their delegation to the camp from the bay area and to return also as a delegation and to stay the entire duration of the program.

For all 2019 programs (except IPP) $85 is due at the time of application submission. The balance will be due in full at the first delegation meeting scheduled for February 10, 2019. Delegates are responsible for paying all air and ground travel costs incurred to get to the camp from the bay area and to return to the bay area once the camp is over. This year only, airfare to the new National Camp "Fortnight" will be paid by the national office. Due dates must be honored in order to participate in CISV programs. Late payments can seriously impact our ability to purchase air travel tickets at reasonable prices and may affect the costs of the program for all participants significantly.

Chapter Minicamp: Delegates participating in a program below (except IPP) will have their minicamp registration fee waived if they wish to attend the event scheduled for June 7-9, 2019.

Descriptions and Definitions:

Application Fee: This fee helps support the costs of managing the application process such as information meetings and selection events including any rental of the space, food, recruiting and processing costs associated with applying to participate in a CISV program.

Family Membership Fee: This fee is what our chapter charges to become a member. Membership is required to participate in our international programs, local events, minicamps, and Junior Branch activities.

Program Fee: This is the fee we charge to participate in our programs. These fees cover CISV's local, national and international administration, insurance, training, hosting, and development expenses.

Airfare/Travel: We shop for the best fares possible in our attempt to keep costs to a minimum while providing for the most efficient travel itinerary. Tickets are purchased on behalf of our delegations by the Chapter. Generally, it is not possible to apply airline miles to purchase tickets for delegates traveling as part of a delegation. Delegates traveling as part of a delegation reimburse the Chapter for the cost of airfare by paying an up-front estimated amount, and then paying an additional amount or receiving a refund, depending upon the final cost of the air tickets. Delegates traveling alone, such as JC's, Seminar Campers and those going to an IPP, Youth Meeting or Fortnight purchase their own airline tickets and may use airline miles if they wish.

Incidentals: Incidentals are costs for miscellaneous items for which a delegate will be responsible in preparation for travel. They might include the cost of passports, medicine, purchasing national costumes, materials cost for memory books, trading items, host family gifts, etc.

Spending Money: The amount of spending money sent with the delegate is determined by each delegation and/or parents. The Chapter generally recommends no more than $200 be sent. There will be a village store selling snacks, stamps, cards as well as T-shirts. Usually a few sightseeing excursions and a shopping trip are planned.

Emergency Money: For delegation based programs, prior to departure, families will be asked to provide emergency money approximately in the amount of $300 per delegate to cover costs that could be incurred in case of flight delays or other unplanned events. If not spent, this will be refunded after the program.

Participation fees are NON-REFUNDABLE once a delegate has been selected and the delegate's family has committed to participate. If illness, accident, weather, acts of terror or other unforeseen circumstances result in a need to cancel participation, CISV will be UNABLE to refund fees paid. Therefore, CISV suggests that travelers obtain travel insurance to avoid loss of deposits and other fees paid. Delegates are expected to travel with their delegation to the camp from the bay area and to return also as a delegation. On rare occasions, the start and end dates of CISV camps could change by a day or two. It is recommended that applicants not have commitments on dates just before or after the start and end of a camp.

Application fee of $35 is due with application as well as $50 chapter membership fee if not a member already. Balance is due in full at first delegation meeting set for February 10, 2019. On rare occasions, the start and end dates of CISV camps could change by a day. It is recommended that applicants not have commitments on dates just before or after the start and end of a camp. Due date must be honored in order to participate in CISV programs. Late fee submissions can seriously impact our ability to purchase air travel tickets at reasonable prices and may affect the costs of the program for all participants significantly.
